How You Can Use Me...

At Linked Into Business, we believe that no matter what channels we use, social media marketing comes down to these three strategies

- Creating your Social Story
- Building Relationships
- Managing your Social Reputation (including Marketing and Monitoring)

There are three ways we can go about creating your New Media strategy:

- We can teach you how to create and implement your social media strategy (Training)
- We can create and implement your social media campaign with you (Masterminding)
- We can create and implement your social marketing for you (Execution)

If you need your Social Marketing done right now, call us for a free consultation on what you feel your needs are, and we will work together to get your campaign up and working immediately. If you need help getting set up on social media, integrating social media with the rest of your marketing program, or getting a campaign launched, please give me a call at 970-212-4711 or shoot me an email and let's get started.

Training

For companies with employees, sometimes it is better for me to come in as a trainer. In your training session/s, I will teach your staff about the culture and strategies of new media and social media marketing. This will increase your staff's capacity to work independently and help them become more proficient marketers.

There are four ways I can engage with companies: Speaking (keynotes and breakout sessions), Training, Training Camps and QuickStarts.

Masterminding

Sometimes we just need a different perspective or a consistent voice of encouragement. I can be your personal marketing trainer, either on-call as needed or as part of a disciplined monthly program. Monthly programs include at least two one-hour coaching sessions in addition to email and telephone support.

Execution or Implementation

If you just don't have the time, we will work together. My team will take on the bulk of implementation, from profile and network building to communication and marketing strategies. I have a team of specialists who will create beautiful profile presences for you; record and edit powerful video introductions; work with you in creating and implementing your company voice; and increase brand recognition and social reputation. Together, we can create a strategy to determine how much – or little – is needed.
